

UU Choral Singing: The Art of Community

"I love our choir, and wish we could join with other congregational choirs to celebrate our love of music and learn and laugh with each other!"

"Singing is so important to me, but I can't join our choir because I have to work on rehearsal nights."

"I can never get enough singing in my life!"

The Mountain has a wonderful opportunity for you if any of these statements sound like you or someone you know! We invite you to participate in a unique choral experience – a musical journey that will allow you to explore multiculturalism through song, and inspire new ways to be in community.

Please join us and experience the power and capacity of community singing. We encourage music directors, choir members and congregants who love to sing to come as a group to enhance your experience and share it with your congregation. Or just come on your own for a memorable singing retreat.

Bring instruments, your own hymnbook, Singing The Journey book, and get ready to "make a joyful noise!" Whether you come alone or as a group, be sure to register EARLY, for spaces are limited.

Adult Sliding Scale rate: $400-700

(whatever you pay above $400 will help support financial needs of other participants who otherwise couldn't attend)

Testimonials from program participants:

"I've always been told not to sing! But Ken brings singers and supposed "non-singers" into a space in which everyone has the capacity to make music together that can truly reach and transform the human spirit."

"Singing with Ken is pure magic."

"I can't imagine a better combination than Singing, The Mountain, and Ken Nafziger!"

Dr. Kenneth Nafziger, of Eastern Mennonite University, (<http://www.emu.edu/personnel/people/show/nafzigkj>), will serve as Choral Clinician during this special Arts event at The Mountain. Ken's passion for creating peace through community singing elicits beauty and brings disparate voices together into glorious sound. His inherent sense of wonder, spirituality, and ever-present humor combine with a thirst for learning and growing along with all who join him on the musical adventures that sometimes surprise and always inspire participants.
